Happy New Year ARMA Chapter members:

Strategic Partnerships: Protecting our PAD

Who are your business partners? Are you leveraging those relationships to boost your records program? Effective Records and Information Management requires cross-functional cooperation between many parts of the organization which may have conflicting goals when it comes to information management. Join us for this interactive discussion of a case study on how CUNA Mutual's RIM, IT, Privacy, Business Continuity and other areas successfully partner to achieve mutual and independent goals. Key subject areas include e-discovery, culture change and policy alignment. You'll leave with ideas on how to build strategic partnerships that can strengthen and advance your RIM program.

Our Presenters:

Brad Krueger joined CUNA Mutual's IT department in 1998 after obtaining a BBA in Management Computer Systems from UW Whitewater. Over the last 13+ years Brad has gained broad IT experience while working in Application Development, IT Audit and Information Security. Currently, Brad is an IT Security Risk Manager with responsible for corporate digital forensics services, security incident management, safe computing user awareness, information security policies and disaster recovery. These responsibilities require Brad to work closely to CUNA Mutual's Records and Information Management department to ensure data is retained to meet litigation requirements.

Teresa Drabenstadt earned an MBA and BBA from UW Madison in Information Systems and Management. She is a long term employee of CUNA Mutual, starting out in IT Application Development, then moving to Internal Audit and finally Ethics & Compliance, (which reports up to Legal).. She currently directs CUNA Mutual's enterprise RIM Program, Privacy Program and Advertising Compliance Program. Our team partners with IT Security and many other areas in the organization to achieve our goals.
